FLAT EARTH BREWING COMPANY CELEBRATES ANNIVERSARY
Twin Cities Microbrewery Crafts Unique Plan for Success

SAINT PAUL – March 24 – Flat Earth Brewing Company, the Twin Cities’ newest microbrewery, is celebrating its first anniversary. Fittingly, the scrappy, workmanlike organization is marking its milestone by sharing a pint this evening with fans, friends and family at the Muddy Pig in Saint Paul.

“This has been a year worth celebrating,” noted Jeff Williamson, Flat Earth’s brewer. “Everyday there’s something new to deal with but in the end, we’re just trying to make beers that people will enjoy and appreciate.”

In its first year of brewing, Flat Earth produced more than 450 barrels of handcrafted beers. The company’s flagship Belgian-style Pale Ale was first brewed last February. The traditional ale quickly garnered attention for its sweet aroma and distinguished finish. The success of the ale prompted the development of several additional brews not normally found in the region.

Today, Flat Earth regularly produces seven artisan ales and lagers including the Belgian-style Pale Ale, Angry Planet Pale Ale, Element 115, Cygnus X-1, Winter Warlock, Bermuda Triangle Triple and Curly Tail Ale. The Curly Tail is brewed exclusively for the St. Paul Saints minor league baseball team and is only available at Midway Stadium. The rest are available on draught or in bottles around the area.

If the taste isn’t enough to get you talking, the brews’ eclectic names may.

“I’d love to say the names were inspired by the poetic nature of the craft, but they’re really generated by us and our friends,” said Williamson. “Some are based on conspiracy theories, musical preferences and talkative friends. It’s hard to beat enjoying a beer and talking with friends. Maybe we’ll make some new friends.”

Flat Earth beers are available in pubs and liquor stores throughout the Twin Cities. Please visit flatearthisbrewing.com for a location near you. Please enjoy Flat Earth responsibly.
